Jacko's music a hit

Drummer No. 2 on the charts

By JANEK SPEIGHT

HE may only be 12 years old, but Jackson "Jacko" Miller is already making a big splash in Tipton's Underground competition.

The young musical talent is placed second in the electronic charts with his banging electro track, "Dance", and is 20th overall.

Jacko, who has autism, has played music since he was five, and rocks out every week at Tipton's 50-based of Rock in Newcastle.

"I play the drums and sing, but I also play the keyboard too," he said.

"I was experimenting with a computer program and then my teacher, Craig Smith, taught me how to DJ which inspired

"It just blew up big. I think a million, but was fortunate he had teachers at school to guide him."

However, the career starts in which one of people about him.

"The technology remixes Disney and Pixar movies to help children associate visualisations with language.

He explained "What we do is we break the movies into short segments of 40 or 50 seconds with some event or concept."

"In Toy Story, it could be as simple as Andy playing with his toys or as complex as Woody pushing Buzz out the window and what happens after that. Children understand almost intuitively what has happened."

He continued "We then connect text to those films so children learn how to label emotions, actions, names of characters. As they build the literacy and reading and writing, speech attaches to that."
